Red Hot Faith

Ministry veteran, Cindy Bultema, helps women choose calling over comfort in new 8-week study

*“Red Hot Faith is not only the title of one of the best Bible studies you will ever engage in, but it also describes the kind of deep faith Cindy exudes.” –Carol Kent, speaker and bestselling author of When I Lay My Isaac Down and *A New Kind of Normal

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 7, 2014—We’ve all read about them. The women who are moving mountains with their faith, digging wells, blogging to billions and caring for orphans all while maintaining the perfect home and family. How do they do it all? Popular speaker and ministry veteran, Cindy Bultema, has read about them, too, and she agrees that there are many more of us who settle into the ease of lackluster, lukewarm rhythm and routine allowing the best opportunities God has for us pass on by.

But what if?

In her new 8-week study, Red Hot Faith: Lessons from a Lukewarm Church, Bultema discusses the “what ifs” of pursuing a life of Red Hot Faith.

- What if God was looking not for perfect women, but ordinary women, and He had powerful plans for us in the midst of our everyday life “stuff?”
- What if God wanted to use our messes for a miraculous message of His redemption and grace?
- What if we took off the false “labels” that have been holding us back and boldly replace them with new labels of truth?
- What if we said “no” to lives of complacency, self-sufficiency, and self-absorption and instead pursued a life of Red Hot Faith?

“After reflecting on these ‘what ifs,’ I now have a passionate, burning desire to share these truths with others, even if it means leaving my comfort zone far behind” says Bultema.

But Bultema didn’t always have a comfort zone. She grew up in a non-Christian home with an atheist father and spent her time in unsatisfying relationships and doing drugs. It wasn’t until she overdosed and almost died from a cocaine overdose in 1996 that she realized she needed God in her life.

From that moment, she dedicated her life to Christ and became active in her church and realized a passion of teaching and talking with women about faith.

Suggested Interview Questions for Cindy Bultema and Red Hot Faith

1. In Red Hot Faith, you unpack Revelation 3:14-22, Jesus' letter to the lukewarm church in Laodicea. How was the church in Laodicea "lukewarm"? How do you see this tepid attitude in today's culture?
2. In preparation for Red Hot Faith, you traveled to the ruins of Ancient Laodicea. What did you discover about the city of Laodicea when you visited there that illuminated the passage?
3. In Session 1, you share very openly your personal testimony. How did a "girl next door" like you end up abusing drugs and almost dying from a drug overdose?
4. Five months before you were to be married, your fiancé David died tragically. Tell us this story and how God used David's death to influence someone you love.
5. In Session 2, you tell the story of hearing a persistent knock at your hotel door, and being very surprised at who was knocking. How did this experience shed light on Revelation 3:20 when Jesus says, "I stand at the door and knock?"
6. You talk about Laodicea's water supply being neither hot nor cold. Tell us what you learned and how it changed your perception of Jesus' words in Revelation 3:15 when He says, "I know your deeds, that you are neither cold nor hot. I wish you were either one or the other!"
7. In Session 5, you take a field trip to a gold refinery at the Grand Bazaar in Istanbul. What lessons did you learn about the refining process that applies to our faith life today?
8. In the Participant's Guide, you share the story of a rather dramatic "faith test" that you experienced in the middle of working on this Bible study. Can you tell us more about what happened that nearly postponed Red Hot Faith?
9. One of the reasons Jesus was so hard on Laodicea was because they were so self-sufficient. Expand on that a bit and tell us why we should examine our own lives for self-sufficiency.
10. What do you hope people will take away from Red Hot Faith?
